The big six-foot prairie runner in Dr. Vetterman's show window turned canibal Thursday and swallowed another prairie runner about four feet long. It took about an hour to do the swallowing; the victim going down head first. The trouble started over a mouse which had been put in the window with them. Both snakes wanted the mouse and a fight followed with results as above.

Just received another car load of buggies, hacks, carriages, surreys and buck boards at Wolters' Bros. Will be sold very cheap.

The little gale of wind which preceded the rain Friday night brought in millions of grasshopper era of the variety known in Kansas, Colorado and the Indian Territory, where they have in time past played havoc with the growing crops. They have long mottled wings and can fly for hundreds of miles before the wind. Saturday morning they were everywhere and attracted a great deal of attention. When they came in Friday night it was like hail striking against the houses.

Last Thursday Fritz Ortman brought into town a freak of nature in the shape of a rabbit—a common cotton tail rabbit just like any other rabbit except it had twenty-one well developed horns on its head. They appear all over its head and are hard and fast. Mr. Ortman shot the rabbit, cut off its head and brought it to Mr. Schultze, who has preserved it in alcohol and has it on exhibition in his drug store. The horns are all the way from an eighth to an inch and a quarter in length.
